In Conversation with

THE GUEST SPEAKER

AR. SAMAR ALI KHAN
DESIGN GROUP PRACTICE

Samar Ali Khan is an architect, philanthropist and politician (not necessarily in that order) and has been leading Design Group Practice since its inception in 1989, after having graduated from the University of Texas, Houston, in 1983

The philosophy espoused by Samar Ali Khan, and manifested through the works of Design Group Practice, is centred around constructing organic, sustainable and holistic environments that balance the built with the natural, stemming from a deep understanding of our climate, culture and context. Our architecture exists at the confluence of indigenous construction methodologies and global digital technologies.

ARCHLORE

In 2019, the duo founded 'Archlore' - an eco-friendly architectural startup that works to promote bamboo as an alternative construction material in Pakistan. Archlore has been working on commercial, residential as well as philanthropic projects to explore the potential of bamboo in meeting SDGs while showcasing the versatility of the material in both urban and rural contexts. As part of their mission to battle climate change, Archlore routinely conducts bamboo workshops in educational institutions to spread awareness and to familiarize young individuals with modern day bamboo construction. Archlore was nominated for an Aga Khan award in 2022
